

Disability Positive Impact Review 2022 to 2023

This document is Disability Positive's Impact Review.

Our Impact Review explains the things we have done between April 2022 and March 2023.

It also explains what difference it has made to people.

Words in bold that you do not understand will be explained. We are Disability Positive.

We offer services, opportunities, and a voice to disabled people and people with health conditions that affect them for a long time.

Our Impact Review talks about what we have done in our services, our opportunities and also how we have given people a voice.

Disability Positive Impact Review 2022 to 2023

Our services are things like payroll, supported banking and help with arranging care and support.

10,081 people used our services this year and nearly all of them (98%) said that they were happy or very happy with our services.

Our opportunities are things like our social groups, our befriending service and volunteering.

Disability Positive Impact Review 2022 to 2023

There were 429 people who used our opportunities this year.

Most of them (97%) said that they felt their Independence, Self Confidence, and Opportunity to Socialise had got better.

Voice is about policy influencing and advocacy.

Policy influencing is telling government and local councils about what our members think and the changes we want.

Advocacy is help with saying what you want and understanding your rights.

Disability Positive Impact Review 2022 to 2023

1296 people used our Advocacy service and all of them said they were happy with it and that using it made sure they knew their rights.

We were part of different national groups that talk to the government about the changes we want to see and we replied to 6 consultations.

A consultation is when government or a local council asks people what they think about something.

You can find information about the money we spent in the main Impact Review document.
